

Jarvis Bailey

Educator. Pastor. Entrepreneur.

Jarvis Bailey impacts lives, adds value, and inspires purpose.

Having served in multiple industries, he is ideally positioned to realize his life's vision of helping people achieve clarity and fulfillment.

Born on Virginia's beautiful Eastern Shore, Jarvis began his leadership journey as a high school quarterback. He continued his education at Virginia Tech, Duke, and Old Dominion University. He entered military service as an Army Chaplain and served in the Gulf War.

From veteran to healthcare manager, business owner, pastor, non-profit director, educator, and elected official, Jarvis has committed to serving others by helping them find their lane and live their best lives. Always believing that he was created for something unique, Jarvis demonstrated his commitment to assisting others in a practical way by writing his first book, "Three Minutes With God: A Weekly Devotional For Inspiration and Encouragement," in 2008.

Today, Jarvis leads his company, Legacy Coaching, as a Thought Leader, though his favorite title will always be "Poppi." He's been married to his high school sweetheart for 39 years. They have three children and two grandchildren and reside in historic Fredericksburg, Virginia. Jarvis says his perfect day is any day he is with his family.
